Samburu National Reserve

Samburu National Reserve, nestled in the semi-arid landscapes of northern Kenya along the banks of the Ewaso Ng'iro River, offers a wild and enchanting safari experience distinct from the more frequented southern parks. The reserve is renowned for its rugged beauty dotted with doum palms, acacia trees, dramatic rocky outcrops and for being home to rare wildlife species collectively known as the "Samburu Special Five": the Grevy's zebra, Somali ostrich, reticulated giraffe, gerenuk, and Beisa oryx. The river is a lifeline, attracting elephants, lions, leopards, and crocodiles, especially during dry months. Birdlife is abundant, with over 450 species recorded. What makes Samburu especially captivating is its cultural richness visitors often encounter the proud and colorfully adorned Samburu people, semi-nomadic pastoralists closely related to the Maasai, who add a deeply authentic dimension to the experience. With fewer crowds than other Kenyan parks, Samburu offers an intimate, off-the-beaten-path safari amidst a starkly beautiful wilderness.

There's a good chance you might see the Big Five (lion, leopard, elephant, rhino and buffalo) on your visit to Ol Pejeta Conservancy, which sits high on the Laikipia Plateau. The conservancy is a fantastic place to see all five species (although leopard can be elusive), and it's one of the best places to see rhino anywhere in Kenya. Other wildlife highlights might include cheetah, hyena, giraffe, zebra and more. Over 500 bird species have been recorded here too. Ol Pejeta also offers the chance to see the last two surviving northern white rhino, as well as a sanctuary for rescued chimpanzees. The conservancy's landscapes include savannah grasslands and riverine woodlands.

Lake Nakuru National Park

The time you spend in Lake Nakuru National Park is sure to be memorable. The park is most famous (and rightly so) for how easy it is to see black and white rhinos here, as well as the populations of lions (including some that, unusually, like to climb trees) and endangered Rothschild's giraffes. You've also a chance of seeing flamingos, leopards and plenty of birds. You might also fall in love with the pretty combination of lake, acacia forest and dramatic escarpment.

Evening Game Drive, Lake Nakuru National Park

You'll love the warm light and cooler temperatures as we take you out to explore on your evening game drive. This time of day is when both predators and prey are most active and it can feel as though anything could happen at any moment. This is when you'll most enjoy being on safari.

The views from just about anywhere in the lodge are the best in the park, and the rooms are large, lovely and filled with light.
